BIG FACTS

At the age of 16, Bartlett was running school trips and parties for his year group. He would take a cut of the money and give the rest to the school.

By 27, serial entrepreneur and CEO Steven Bartlett had created and grown his social media marketing company, Social Chain, to a valuation of £300M+. A university dropout, Bartlett started out running student events and an online messaging board called Wallpark before finding success with Social Chain. He is now a successful author, the force behind weekly podcast The Diary Of A CEO and was announced as the newest and youngest-ever Dragon on the BBC series Dragons' Den.
